Full Slate of Speakers for September 16, 2005 Meeting

The program committee off the Utah Chapter of HFMA is starting off with four key topics for the new year. Speakers will cover topics including Revenue Cycle Management (Brian Robertson a Senior VP of Operations with MedeFinance, Inc); Uncompensated Care (Pattie Kloehn, MBA, Executive VP and partner with Zimmerman, LLC a revenue cycle consulting firm); Hospital Cost Accounting (Richard McDermott, PhD, a professor at Weber State University and former Hospital Administrator); and taking and creating Personal Responsibility (Todd King, MBA, Covey Leadership). The meeting will be held on September 16, 2005 at St. Mark's Hospital Education Center, 2nd Floor of the Women's Pavilion, Through sharing and communication we all gain knowledge from one another. That is what HFMA is all about. Join US!

"Night out with the Stingers" - Join Us on September 1, 2005

Come join the Utah Chapter of HFMA on Thursday, September 1, 2005 for a wonderful "Night out with the Stingers" at Covey Field in Salt Lake City. This is the Stingers final home game of the 2005 season and they will be playing the Colorado Springs Sky Sox. Game time is 7:00pm and tickets are $7.00 per person (no charge for children under 3 years of age).

Family and friends are invited to attend, and the chapter has reserved a group picnic area. That evening the Stingers promotion is called "Jersey off the Players Back." For more information regarding this outing, please see page 5. Look forward to seeing you there.

The Tipping Point . . .

The phrase “the tipping point” is in the news a lot lately. It may be someone talking about Malcolm Gladwell’s book with that same name; the CD by the rock group Roots; or, Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld saying that we are at the tipping point in Iraq in the quest for a democratic state. It’s enough to make you wonder if you’re missing the point.

So I decided to do a little research on “the tipping point”. According to Mr. Gladwell, it is based on the theory of memetrics (that was a big help!) and is what explains how little changes can have big effects. For example when a small number of people begin behaving differently, that behavior can ripple outward until a critical mass is reached, changing the entire world.

So what’s the point? Well, as your Board was developing the strategic plan for this year, one pervasive chapter weakness was noted. The chapter gets together for some great educational meetings, enjoys the fellowship of other members (although we still sit with our respective employer groups), and then forgets about HFMA until the next great educational meeting.

What actions do we need to take to make our Chapter more dynamic and collegial?

The Board would like to see an active Social Committee and more opportunities to mingle. Towards that end, Colin Quincy, Boyd Chappell and Janet Malmberg have agreed to spearhead an HFMA Family outing to the Stingers game on September 1. We will get a picnic table in the outfield and hope that everyone - moms, dads and kids - will join us for a fun evening.

The Board is also hosting a new member breakfast on Friday, October 16, 2005. We’d like to give our new members a warm welcome and begin the process of generating enthusiasm that will spread outward. Pretty soon we will be at the tipping point of a cohesive, fun-loving, well-educated chapter!

But it would be inappropriate to focus this whole letter on that one weakness. We have such incredible strengths – thanks to the previous boards and especially thanks to Kelly Christensen’s leadership last year. At ANI this year, our chapter collected the Bronze award for Excellence in New Member Retention, the Silver for Excellence in Membership Growth and the Gold award for Excellence in Certification. We were within a hair’s breath of getting the national award for CFO recruitment and just .07 hours per member shy of receiving the Bronze award for Excellence in Education. Congratulations and many thanks to Kelly, his board and all members for the hard work.

So let’s celebrate our successes and commit to pushing to the Tipping Point to be the best chapter we can be!

Yours truly - Barb Viskochil

Region 10 & 8 Conference Update - An Event of Olympic Proportions

Mark your calendars and put it in your budget - Region 10 & 8 Conference in Park City Utah May 10 – 12, 2006. This year’s conference theme is “An Event of OLYMPIC Proportions”. Held at the site of the 2002 Winter Olympics this year’s conference will cap a Gold Medal year for the Utah Chapter of HFMA.

Our kick-off meeting was held in May 2005 at The Canyons Resort where the conference will be held. We had representatives from almost all states and planning has begun. Brochures for exhibitors are going out as this article is being written; the education committee is choosing speakers; the food has been selected; and the opening ceremonies are coming together.

This year’s conference will have four General Sessions and three Breakout sessions (with three tracks: Executive, Revenue Cycle and Rural). The committees are looking at experts in all these areas to help motivate and educate all of us.

We have been able to secure some tremendous rates at The Canyons Resort. Rooms will begin at $79.00 and $99.00 per night. The conference registration rate will be the same as the 2005 rate. Park City is only 30 minutes from the Salt Lake City airport and we will have shuttles (at a preferred group rate) for those who prefer not to rent a car.

Along with education, we are planning a Banquet with a silent auction - proceeds will go to Special Olympics. Please think of items you would like to bring from your state to auction off.

Again we look forward to seeing all of you in Park City for an Event of OLYMPIC Proportions.

Thanks for your support.

HFMA CFO Forum - Quarterly Insights - Summer 2005

HFMA CFO Forum Quarterly Insights Summer 2005

Welcome to the summer issue of the CFO Forum Quarterly Insights. As you know, the mission of the CFO Forum is to provide a vehicle for senior financial executives to share insights and success strategies.

With that in mind, this issue represents a shift in the format of Quarterly Insights. In this issue, we've turned the newsletter over to your insights into a single topic: the skill set needed by today's healthcare CFOs.

In the February issue of hfm magazine, author Larry Scanlan, FHFMA, CPA, said, "Today's CFO needs ... the kind of skills that can't be found in an MBA textbook or continuing education seminar."

So we asked the CFO Forum members this question:

What is the most important skill a CFO needs that he or she cannot learn from a book or classroom--and why?

And here is what you told us. (We received so many responses, we were forced to select only a handful.)

I can't limit it to "the one" most important skill, but here are a few: Find talented people to work for you and do all you can to mentor and develop them to be solid decision makers. Trying to do it alone is not only selfish, but will result in many missed opportunities for the organization.

Another critical skill is the ability to be honest with yourself and know when to get help--seeking the opinion of peers or engaging experts is critical given the complexity of our business today. Build great relationships and learn to listen. To quote singer/songwriter Carrie Newcomer, "If I can turn down the noise of my own will and choice, I can hear the truth of my life in a clear voice."

Michael Allen
Winona Health

Interpersonal/people skills. These important elements cannot be learned in any classroom, but are required in order to relate well in his/her environment. Working closely with all staff members and understanding how to communicate with peers and subordinates alike with a down-to-earth and open communication style are essential to success for any senior executive.

Ena Dobberstein
First Consulting Group

I'm humbly convinced that there are two qualifications that can't be learned from any textbook.

1. A CFO is more than just a "gatekeeper"; he or she needs to comprehend the overall picture of the organization and the associated industry and manage with the leadership that holds the delicate balance. Otherwise, the fast-changing political and economic environment will easily sweep away the objectives the CFO is trying to achieve.

2. CFOs need to be more practically creative with the investment assets of the organization. The concept "long-term horizon and short-term ready" is extremely important, and the fundamental benefits of this concept are to deal with unexpected lawsuits and take care of the shareholders' interests.

Legend Financial Advisory, LLC

You need to know the industry and study it in all aspects--not just financial. You should not block yourself from the clinical side of the industry; it all relates.

"Successful leaders see the opportunities in every difficulty rather than the difficulty in every opportunity." --Reed Markham

Guita Sharifi, EA

Leadership. Good leadership requires excellent communication/people skills--usually a weak area for CFOs. The days of a CFO being just being a number cruncher are long over. Being able to communicate well with everyone is key. There are many classes on communication skills, but nothing except experience and intuitiveness can guide you to say the right thing at the appropriate time.

Barbara H. Duncan
Barrow Community Hospital

A CFO requires business and financial judgment, defined as the ability to define problems and make intuitive judgments with incomplete information. Such judgment cannot be learned in classes of any type, but is learned through experience and on-the-job trial and error. One attribute that a CFO requires today is a well-defined professional and personal ethic--something that comes from inside and must be maintained by personal belief and strength of character.

Utah HFMA's Night Out with the Stingers

Come join the Utah Chapter of HFMA for a night at the "Old Ball Game" Thursday, September 1, 2005 at the Stingers home finale.

Game time will be 7:00pm.

Ticket prices are $7.00 per person (family and friends are also invited to attend) - children three (3) and under get in free.

We will also be reserving a group picnic area and enjoying a professionally catered picnic (optional) which will be $11.50 per person, the menu will include hamburgers, hot dogs, side dishes - coleslaw, baked beans, fresh fruit, etc - as well as chips and a drink.

In order to get some idea of the number of tickets and meals we need to reserve - please RSVP with the total number of each to Janet Malmberg (janetmalmberg@aol.com), or Chappell (bchappell@utah.gov) by Friday, August 19, 2005. Money for the tickets and picnic will need to be sent to Laura Wood prior to August 24, 2005.

This is an excellent opportunity to mingle with fellow members of your chapter and get to know them in a very relaxed, fun atmosphere. Don't pass up this opportunity to spend an evening at the ballpark before the summer ends.

Looking forward to seeing you all!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
